WASHINGTON, DC— To kick off National Family Caregiver's month, AARP Bulletin releases a special in-depth report on the state of caregiving in America. This month, AARP Bulletin highlights an invisible army of 40 million heroes making sacrifice every day to help provide care for loved ones. According to a recent AARP report, their collective 37 billion hours of unpaid caregiving is worth $470 billion. Additionally, readers get a closer look at how the faces of caregiving are changing, from men filling more traditionally female roles to millennials giving back in unexpected ways.

The November issue of AARP Bulletin also highlights helpful tech devices that make life easier for caregivers who are juggling work and caring for loved ones.

A Late Tour of Duty: AARP Bulletin profiles military service members over the age of 50 who have decided to serve their country by going back for another tour of duty.

Your Money: AARP's personal finance expert, Jane Bryant Quinn, answers some of the toughest questions about making a graceful exit from the stock market, and what older investors can do to protect their investments and accumulated wealth.

Are You Being Targeted at Work? AARP Bulletin highlights the five signs you might be facing age discrimination by posing the question: Are you being targeted at work? Experts on career counseling and age discrimination picked five telltale signs to watch for.

Save Money in Medicare in 2016: An AARP Bulletin analysis shows that in 2016, Medicare Part D drug coverage can differ in cost by as much as $100, $200 or $500 for a prescription.

What You Should Know About the Shingles Vaccine: Getting the shingles vaccination in your 50s may offer earlier protection against the disease, but the CDC recommends the vaccine be given at age 60. The AARP Bulletin explains the differing opinions and recommendations on when the shingles vaccine should be given to adults.

Scam Alert! Beware: Free Credit Score Rip-Offs: Most people have seen those commercials touting free credit score reporting. In this month's issue of AARP Bulletin, author and scam expert Sid Kirchheimer warns readers about the risks that come with 'free' offers from these reporting companies.

Your AARP: A Salute to Hidden Heroes: AARP CEO Jo Ann Jenkins salutes the 5.5 million military family caregivers who support our veterans from spouses, parents, and siblings to other loved ones performing an array of functions at home.
